“ Mr. Edgar was such a great person and coach. I still remember him taking his own time to teach me to pitch during hours well outside regular practice time. If I was at one of my older brother's games and he was there he would say "Let's practice a bit". He truly loved passing on his knowledge to the next generations. Thanks, Mr. Edgar. To his entire family, and especially my former classmate Ginny, my sincere condolences.

“ Alex we go back to seventh grade when we met and started playing guitars together. I remember going to your house and your father and mother welcoming me at the door. Al, your love for music will always be remembered. All of us in the “class of 70” were fortunate to have shared life with you.

You will be missed my friend. You were a gentle soul who definitely has earned his wings. Rest easy Al.

Prayers and thoughts to your family. You are so missed already.

“ You taught me to play bass guitar so many years ago in our garage band with the boys. You were a good friend and a good person to work with at EB. I have many fond memories, pal. I'll miss you.

“ One of the things that unites Al and I in friendship, besides being a classmate, is that we grew up with similar circumstances. His family had a house at the beach and so did mine. One day when we were in HS he showed up with his friends in front of our house in Old Lyme. A couple of years ago we went down memory lane and talked about the wonderful childhood summers we spent there. We laughed and laughed so hard I was crying. I hadn't laughed like that in years. When I was having trouble with my husband's illness, we accidentally bumped into each other and he gave me sage advice which I followed. He was open and honest with everyone. He loved Ginny to the Moon and back. He found his soulmate and the fruits of their relationship gave him more to love. But, he loved everyone as if we were his immediate family. We were blessed to be a part of his life and it's hard to say goodbye for now....until we meet again someday.
